

The 7th International Shipment of 2026 Heads To El Salvador!

This Tuesday, we sent out our 7th international shipment of the year to El Salvador! This shipment was made in partnership with Food For The Poor (FFTP), an organization Midwest Mission regularly works with to send needed supplies around the world.

The recipient of these supplies is a new FFTP partner, World Vision. In El Salvador, World Vision focuses on supporting children, youth, and vulnerable communities through programs such as disaster response, youth development, protection initiatives, and child sponsorship.

This shipment will support their work by providing materials to help create safe, supportive spaces for development across physical, emotional, social, and spiritual areas. It will also equip community leaders and organizations to protect and care for children in sustainable ways.

Let's take a look at the contents of the shipment:

- 57 Tarps
- 46 Chairs
- 21 Rolls of Fabric
- 36 School Desks

- 560 Student Kits
- 4 Home Care Beds
- 34 Electric Sewing Machines
- 620 Hospital Blankets
- 3 Treadle Sewing Machines
- 38 Sleeping Mats
- 30 Bikes
- 69 Crutches
- 54 Twin Bed Mattresses
- 54 Bed Packs
- 752 T-Shirts
- 9 Shower Chairs

The total value of these supplies is $75,450.00.

We are able to send hope and empowerment to those around the world and around the corner, because of people like you. Whether you packed a kit, donated resources, helped load the shipment, or shared about Midwest Mission, you helped others experience the practical love of Jesus Christ.

Thank you for helping us send hope, one shipment at a time!

You Can Make 'Sew' Much Impact!

A group of dedicated volunteers at Oak Creek Community UMC recently turned creativity into impact. The Going to Pieces Fiber Artists created 200 one-handed bags for Midwest Mission – bags that will soon be filled with essential and life-changing supplies.

This project began with a generous donation of heavy-duty fabric scraps from a company that installed window treatments in their fellowship hall.

From there, the group hosted two sewing days in January and February, spending time sorting, cutting, ironing, serging, and sewing. In addition to those gatherings, many volunteers contributed extra hours working from home to complete the bags!

These one-handled bags play an important role in our mission, helping us package and distribute Kits to those in need around the world and around the corner. Each bag represents not only practical support, but also care, dignity, and encouragement for the one who receives it.

Inspired by their work? You can help, too.

Midwest Mission is currently in great need of more one-handled bags to keep up with the demand for Kits. Whether you're part of a sewing group, a church, or simply enjoy crafting on your own, this is a meaningful and accessible way to make a difference.

You can find the instructions for the One-Handled Bag here:
<https://www.midwestmission.org/patterns>.

Gather fabric, invite others to join you, and start creating!

Education is the Future of Honduras

A few weeks ago, our team returned from our annual trip to Honduras, where we had the opportunity to witness the transformation Midwest Mission Kits and Projects bring to communities. It is a trip we look forward to each year because we get to see firsthand how these initiatives impact and transform lives.

As our team entered one of the schools, a phrase painted boldly across the wall immediately caught our attention:

“Education is the future of Honduras.”

This simple statement stayed with us as we traveled from school to school throughout the trip.

We visited several schools in a variety of communities, some near San Pedro Sula and others that required much more travel to reach. One of those was a community called Buena Vista. Getting there meant navigating multiple terrains and modes of transportation, including a bus ride, a boat, and finally a truck winding up into the mountains. It was remote and far removed from many of the resources we often take for granted. And yet, when we arrived, we were met with something powerful.

Students gathered with excitement, but they weren't alone. Parents, older siblings, and relatives stood alongside them, showing up in full support of the next generation. The sense of community was immediate and tangible. Despite limited resources, there was no shortage of commitment. These families believe deeply in the value of education, and they are doing everything in their power to ensure their children have a future.

In many ways, we found ourselves learning from them. Their unity, determination, and shared hope painted a picture of what it looks like to truly invest in the next generation. It was a reminder that no matter where you are in the world, the desire is the same. We all want the best for our children.

But alongside that beauty, there was also a reality we couldn't ignore.

At nearly every school we visited, one need stood out above all others: basic school supplies. The demand for Student Kits and educational resources is significant. One school shared that they had to delay the start of classes because the supplies had not yet arrived. Without notebooks, pencils, and essential materials, teachers and students simply could not begin.

It's hard to imagine from our perspective. In the United States, school supplies are often easy to access and sometimes even discarded while still usable. But in Honduras, these items are foundational. They are not extras. They are essential tools that make education possible.

During our visit, Javier, a representative from Food For The Poor, shared something that deeply impacted us:

“Education is one of the greatest needs in the countries we serve. Out of 35 partner organizations, Midwest Mission is the only one providing school supplies. We are so grateful, and we want more. Education is the only way we can break the cycle of poverty.”

Within their entire network, Midwest Mission is currently the only organization collecting and distributing school supplies in this way. After witnessing the need firsthand, it became even more clear just how meaningful this work is and how much opportunity there is to grow it.

Which is why we are even more passionate about the intentional steps we are taking to respond.

At the end of each school year in the United States, countless usable supplies, including notebooks, gently used pencils, crayons, and more, are thrown away or set aside and forgotten. Items that could still serve a purpose are often treated as waste.

Midwest Mission's Used & New School Supply Drive exists to change that.

By collecting gently used or new supplies from local schools and communities, we are able to redirect these resources to Honduras, where teachers can distribute them directly to students who need them most. What might seem insignificant here is essential there. These supplies help open doors to learning, growth, and opportunity.

We are inviting churches to be part of this effort by serving as local drop-off sites and creating a simple but meaningful connection between communities here and students in Honduras. It is an opportunity to practice stewardship, build relationships with local schools, and take part in hands-on mission work that has a lasting impact.

After visiting these communities, hearing their stories, and witnessing both their resilience and their need, this initiative feels more important than ever.

If you haven't yet considered being part of the Used & New School Supply Drive, we invite you to take that next step.

Together, we can help ensure that when students walk into their classrooms, they have exactly what they need to learn and become the future of Honduras.

Churches Needed as Drop-Off Sites for School Supply Drive

In light of this great need, Midwest Mission has timely opportunities for your congregation and church to get involved!

We are seeking churches to serve as Drop-Off Sites for our 2026 Used & New School Supply Drive. At the end of the school year, usable supplies are often discarded in the U.S., while students in Honduras lack basic tools for learning.

As a Drop-Off Site, your church would:

- Register as an official collection location
- Share ready-made promotional materials with nearby schools
- Receive collected supplies at the end of the school year
- Deliver donations to a Midwest Mission location, Permanent Collection Site, or Annual Conference Collection

Learn more, and register your church to help bridge this gap and turn leftover supplies into lasting impact at midwestmission.org/churchdropoff.

Weekend Workshop: Sewing Machine Repair!

If you're passionate about the impact sewing machines can make, we have an opportunity for you! Join Midwest Mission on April 18th for another Weekend Workshop. From 8:30-3:00 we will be hosting a Sewing Machine Repair Workshop; a hands-on workshop focused on verifying machines, testing operation, and learning how to properly clean and lubricate them.

Whether you're brand new to the sewing realm or experienced in repairing machines, there's a place for you. During this time, beginners can learn how to correctly thread and smoothly run a machine, while those with more experience can dive into tuning, cleaning, and troubleshooting to keep machines running like new. It's also a great chance to connect with other enthusiasts while building practical skills that make a difference!

The Heartbeat of Midwest Mission: Honoring Our Volunteers

A steady rhythm flows throughout Midwest Mission. It is formed by the sound of hands assembling kit after kit, the hum of songs being sung around worktables, the roar of a truck engine hauling off a load of supplies, the buzz of excitement during food and kit packs.

It drives on with the beat of every heart of our volunteers.

The month of April is National Volunteer month, which means we get to celebrate and show our gratitude to those who drive our mission forward. During this time, we pause—not out of obligation, but out of deep gratitude—to recognize the thousands of hands and hearts that continue to make this work possible.

Long before Midwest Mission became what it is today, it began with people willing to show up. People who offered their time, their energy, and their hearts in service to others. Quite literally, this place was built by volunteers. And in the years since, that same spirit continues to shape everything we do and stand for.

In 25 years, more than 53,244 volunteers have been part of this mission. But our volunteers are far more than a number on a spreadsheet. Each person who steps through these doors becomes part of a story that stretches far beyond these walls. Every kit assembled, every project completed, every shipment sent carries the care of many hands and the compassion of many hearts.

We often say here, 'we couldn't do what we do without volunteers.' And we will keep saying it, because it will never stop being true.

Our volunteers are the backbone of the transformative work being done through Midwest Mission.

A few weeks ago, our newest staff member, Caleigh, began her onboarding differently than most: she spent her first week volunteering alongside the people who make this mission run. Afterward, she reflected:

“While each task was new and exciting, what stood out most was the deep appreciation I gained for our volunteers. They welcomed me to Midwest Mission with smiles and open arms, making me feel immediately at home. They gave me a greater understanding of the vital role volunteers play in Midwest Mission’s work. Their time, energy, and servant hearts are what make it possible for us to reach communities in need around the world. I am immensely blessed and grateful to be surrounded by such incredible volunteers who make Midwest Mission possible. Working alongside them to carry out the mission was an experience I will always cherish.”

Her words echo what we see every day. A willingness to serve. A shared sense of purpose. A community that shows up, not for recognition, but because they believe in what this mission stands for.

In a world that often encourages us to hold tightly to our time and comfort, our volunteers choose something different. They choose to give. They choose to serve. They choose to transform lives.

This mission does not belong to a single person or group. It is carried forward by every volunteer who sees a need and responds with action.

Because of you, this mission moves forward. Because of you, lives are being transformed — one kit, one project, one shipment at a time.

Service That Brings a Community Together

As we reflect on the impact of our volunteers, we are grateful for opportunities to highlight the meaningful ways people are serving in their communities.

In Michigan, pastors from Heritage District 3 gathered to host a Blessing Bag packing event as part of their monthly Methodist ministry meeting. All 15 churches in the district contributed financially, and more than 110 volunteers from 10 churches came together to serve. It was a powerful example of what can happen when a community unites with a shared purpose.

One of the most memorable parts of the day was the involvement of a local Girl Scout troop, whose energy and enthusiasm brought a special joy to the event. The girls decorated meal kit boxes, created thank-you cards for volunteers, and encouraged those around them throughout the day. Their presence served as a meaningful reminder of why this work matters.

This troop has been together for four years and has made community service a consistent and important part of their time together. Through experiences like this, they are building empathy, responsibility, and a lasting spirit of generosity.

Marta Conrad and Dennis Ferguson, co-chairs of the event, shared, "This was our first time hosting a Midwest Mission event, and it was a tremendous success—one of those days that reminds us what community is all about."

Keep Collecting and Assembling – The Annual Conference Season is Almost Here!

Each year, Midwest Mission sets up temporary collection sites at United Methodist Annual Conferences throughout the Midwest. For two days during each conference, churches from across the state can drop off supplies at a designated donation location – making it far easier than traveling all the way to Midwest Mission.

Annual Conference season begins at the end of May, which means now is the time to be collecting donations, assembling Kits, and spreading the word in your church and community!

Here are a few items we especially need this year:

Personal Dignity Kits

Home Care Kits

Wheelchairs, walkers, canes, and crutches in good condition

Day and Night Pads for the Feminine Hygiene Kit

We will gladly accept anything that is in our Kits and Projects Brochure

What Can You Do?

Organize a supply drive at your church or with friends.

Host a Kit assembly event for Personal Dignity Kits or Home Care Kits. (Find shopping lists and assembly instructions at midwestmission.org/kits.)

You can find specific dates and locations for Annual Conference Collections at midwestmission.org/annual-conferences. And remember — you do not have to attend the conference to drop off supplies at a collection site!

Together, we can transform resources into humanitarian relief that transforms lives!

Relief Sent to Michigan After Flooding

For those who reside in the Midwest, it's easy to form a love-hate relationship with spring.

With Spring comes warmer weather, budding flowers, green grass, and beautiful, new beginnings. However, with the changing of the seasons, we have also learned to expect the dark clouds that herald the coming stormy season.

Whether it's tornadoes, hailstorms, heavy rainfall, or some other kind of cataclysm, Midwesterners hunker down come April.

At Midwest Mission, we also prepare, but in a different way. We get ready to bring relief where it's needed so that when the storms pass and communities face the aftermath, we can step in and bring hope.

This week, we were able to do just that.

After heavy rainfall in the Great Lakes region, many towns and even entire counties in Michigan experienced dangerous flooding. Between snowmelt and heavy rainfall, roads and homes have been submerged in feet of water. On top of that, tornadoes swept through the region, adding another layer of danger and damage.

But because of you, we were ready to act! When a request came in on Friday the 17th from the Michigan United Methodist Conference for Cleaning Kits, we responded swiftly, ensuring those affected had the right supplies at the right time.

Just days later on Wednesday the 22nd, the 2,160 Cleaning Kits left our warehouse. They arrived at a staging warehouse in Grayling, Michigan the very next day. From there, the kits were immediately distributed, reaching recipients by the end of Thursday.

In just six days, these supplies went from a request to being placed directly into the hands of those who needed them.

These Cleaning Kits will not only help families and communities clean up the damage left in the wake of the floods, but will also bring hope, dignity, healing, and empowerment. When everything feels overwhelming and it's hard to know where to begin, these Kits offer a first step toward restoring their homes and lives.

We are so grateful for your support as we show God's love in a practical way by transforming resources into humanitarian relief. It is truly a blessing to respond so quickly when needs arise, and it's only possible because of the willing hearts of volunteers, the generosity of donors, and the community that surrounds Midwest Mission.

Every contribution, whether financial, time, or supplies, goes directly into the hands of those who need it most. Thank you!

Breaking Barriers: The Power of a Bicycle

For many of us, when we think of bicycles, we picture a childhood toy, something that carried us to friends' houses or a quick trip to the store for a treat. It was recreational, something to use when we were bored. But for others, a bicycle can mean so much more.

Transportation is one of the biggest challenges people face when living in poverty or trying to get back on their feet. This is true globally and here in the United States. When someone can't access a job, education, healthcare, or even basic necessities because they lack transportation, a significant barrier is created.

Midwest Mission recognizes this need and works to break down that barrier by collecting and distributing new and refurbished bicycles.

Recently, Jeremiah Miller, the Reservations Coordinator, helped coordinate the distribution of a couple of bikes to men in nearby Springfield, Illinois. One of the recipients, Kyle, is starting a new job, which is exciting! However, it previously took him two hours to walk from where he lived to his job.

Now, with a bike, it takes just thirty minutes!

Kyle is one of several men in a recovery home where they are working hard to rebuild their lives. That's determination. That's perseverance. That's empowerment in action.

Something as simple as a bike can hold incredible power because opportunity fuels empowerment.

Let's be in prayer for them as they take steps toward a new life.

Churches Needed as Drop-Off Sites for School Supply Drive

It's not too late to sign your church up to be a Drop-Off Site for school supplies! The end of the school year is drawing near, and we want to spread the word to schools around the Midwest that they can turn their leftover school supplies into lasting impact!
